ARMINIAN SKELETON.

Subſcriptions are received at the Book Store of COTTOM and STEWART, for a BOOK entitled,

THE SKELETONS:
Or, the Arminian Aanatomized, and
The Carnal Preacher Diſſected.
In two Parts.

Part I. The Arminian, or doctrine of Univerſal Charity purſued, taken, examined, tried, condemned, executed, and anatomized.

Part. II. The Carnal Preacher Diſſected, with comments on ſeveral dark paſſages of ſcripture. In a ſeries of letters, written at various times to friends in the country.

It is the opinion of ſeveral reſpectable clergymen, that the above book contains the ground work and principles of genuine piety, as it manifeſtly proves, from the ſcriptures of truth, that the doctrine of free-will and univerſal redemption is unfounded.

Twenty Five Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the ſubſcriber's farm, in the county of Alexandria, diſtrict of Columbia, a Mulatto man called NATT COOK, about 6 feet high, between 35 and 40 years of age, long hair which he wears tied, a lock of white hair on the front of his head, a little to the left, a cooper by trade; he has ſeveral ſcars on his arms and wriſts, a ſcar on his back occaſioned by a ſcald, and ſeveral marks from a whip; he is very fond of drink and gambling; he took with him a variety of clothes and ſome cooper's tools. He croſſed the Potomac at Georgetown a few days ſince, and will probably make for Baltimore, as he has been very anxious for ſome time paſt to go to ſea. I will give the above reward for ſecuring ſaid fellow in any jail, ſo that I get him again, or thirty dollars, with reaſonable charges if brought home. ☞ All maſters of veſſels and others are forewarned harbouring, employing or carring off ſaid fellow at their peril.

Late Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON July 14.

The moment appears to approach when it will be impossible any longer to avoid a serious rupture with the court of Madrid, and we apprehend that one with Portugal will take place at no great length of time from the former. Can it be denied that British subjects in both these countries have been harrassed & insulted, while the subjects of France are treated with extraordinary indulgence, and even the laws strained and violated for their accommodation and interests? Private letters also state in positive terms, that commercial treaties highly injurious to our trade, have been concluded between Spain and Portugal, and his Imperial Majesty Bonaparte. The best informed politicians have long doubted the wisdom of our inactivity with respect to these countries in whose councils the FIAT of the usurper is every thing: but we believe that a very short time will elapse before the reasons and grounds of this inactivity must become the subject of public discussion.

To the protest of Louis XVIII, against Bonaparte's assuming the title of Emperor of the French, may be added the refusal of Russia to recognise him with that title.

STATE PAPERS.

Translation of an Imperial Ukase, issued by the Emperor of Russia at St. Petersburgh the 7th of May, 1804. relative to the admission of foreigners into his Imperial Majesty's dominions.

1st. To enter our frontiers, all persons, except in the undermentioned cases are to be provided with passports from our ministers and other agents residing in foreign countries. Particular instructions will be sent to our ministers and Consuls as to the manner in which such passports are to be granted, so as to cause the least inconvenience to trade or general intercourse.

2d. Persons coming from cities or places where we have neither missions nor consuls, must produce passports at the frontier from the Governors or chief officers, there. Passports from inferior Officers, from the country justices or commissioners, or from the magistrate will not be acknowledged. The governors of our frontier provinces will receive instructions in what manner they are to communicate with the Governors of provinces belonging to another power relative to this point, and directions will be given at the barriers where passports are to be acknowledged.

3d. Russian subjects, traders, and other persons usually residing in Russia, having passports to go abroad for a limited term, will be permitted to return with the same passports.

4th. Persons owing allegiance to two powers (Sujets mixtes) must, from our side, be provided with a passport for a year from the regency of that government in which their property lies, with which during that term, they may pass out and in without interruption.

5th. All persons must produce their passports at the frontiers; and, if conformable to these regulations, they will be allowed to pass without molestation, except such as may be particularly ordered to stop.

6th. These regulations are to extend to all seaports, in so far as regards passengers arriving there. Ship masters, and persons serving on board ships, are to be admitted on the former existing regulations.

7th. All these regulations shall be enforced for the nearer ports of Europe within two months; and for the more distant namely Spain and Portugal, within four months, reckoning from the day of this ordinance, (Ukase,) which shall be published in the newspapers of both our capitals.

8th. The daily communications of persons residing on the frontiers will remain on the former footing.

9th. The intercourse with various Asiatic nations, on the frontiers of the Cuban, on the lines of Caucasus and Orenburgh, and also with the Turkish subjects in general is to remain on the former footing.

10th. Passports will be granted to persons going out of the country as formerly.

Signed with his Imperial Majesty's own hand.

ALEXANDER.

Countersigned,
Count V. KOTCHUBEY.

OFFICIAL NOTE.

Presented to the French government by the Russian Charge d'Affairs, M. D'Oubril, relative to the late occurrences at Ettenheim.

"According to the orders which the undersigned charge d'affairs of his Imperial majesty, emperor of all the Russias, has received from his court, he hastens to inform the minister of the French republic, that his illustrious master, has learned with equal astonishment and concern, the event that has taken place at Ettenheim, the circumstances that have accompanied it, and its melancholy result. The concern of the Emperor on this occasion is the more lively, as he can by no means reconcile the violation of the territory of the elector of Baden to those principles of justice and propriety which are held sacred among nations, and are the bulwark of their reciprocal relations. His Imperial majesty finds in this act a violation of the rights of nations, and of a neutral territory, which, at least was as arbitrary as it was public; a violation, the consequences of which, are difficult to estimate, and which if considered as admissible, must entirely annihilate the security and independence of sovereign states. If the German empire, after the misfortunes it has suffered which has sensibly made it feel the necessity of tranquility and repose, might still be in fear for the integrity of its territory, could it have been expected that this should have originated on the part of a government which has laboured to secure to it peace, and imposed on itself the duty of guaranteeing its continuance?

"All these considerations have not permitted the Emperor to pass over in silence this unexpected event, which has spread consternation through Germany.

"His Imperial Majesty has held it to be his duty, as a guarantee and mediator of the peace, to notify to the states of the empire, the manner in which he views an action which endangers their security and independence. The Russian resident at Ratisbon has, in consequence, received orders to deliver in a note to the diet, and to represent to it, and to the head of the empire, the necessity of remonstrating to the French government, against this violation of the German territory.

"His Imperial majesty holds it in like manner to be his duty to notify his sentiments directly to the French government by the undersigned, as his majesty is assured that the first consul will hasten to attend to the just remonstrances of the German political body, and feel the pressing necessity of taking the most active measures to relieve all the governments of Europe from the alarm he must have occasioned to them, and put an end to an order of things too dangerous to their safety and future independence.

"The undersigned hereby fulfils the commands of his illustrious master, and avails himself of this opportunity to communicate to the citizen minister for foreign affairs, the assurances of his high esteem.

Signed D'OUBRIL."

NEW-YORK, September 7.

At a meeting of the Standing Committee of the Society of Cincinnatti of the state of New-York, on Wednesday the 5th of Sept. 1804.

The President presented a letter received by him from Major General Charles Cotesworth Pinckney, Vice President General of the Society of Cincinnatti, which was read and attentively considered.—Whereupon, resolved unanimously, that, this Committee highly approve the sentiments expressed in the said letter, and that the secretary forthwith cause the same to be published.

The President also presented a letter from Mrs. Hamilton, which was read—Resolved unanimously that the secretary cause the same to be published,

Wm. POPHAM, Sec'ry.

Charleston, S. C. Aug. 18, 1804.

SIR,

With deep affliction I receive the account of our irreparable loss by the death of our late President General. This deplorable event has been sensibly felt, and lamented in this part of the union, even by those who were not personally acquainted with him, and who did not coincide with him in politics. By me, who have witnessed his calm intrepidity and heroic valor on trying occasions, and was acquainted with his transcendent abilities and amiable qualities, and honoured with his particular friendship, his loss is most poignantly felt, and his memory will be ever most affectionately revered.

Is there no way of abolishing, throughout the union, this absurd and barbarous custom, to the observance of which he fell a victim? Duelling is no criterion of bravery, for I have seen cowards fight duels and I am convinced real courage may often be better shewn in the refusal, than in the acceptance of a challenge. If the Society of Cincinnatti were to declare their abhorrence of this practice, and the determination of all their members to discourage it as far as they had influence, and on no account either to send or accept a challenge it might tend to annul this odious custom, and would be a tribute of respect to the sentiments of our late illustrious chief. If the state Society of New York should coincide with me in opinion, I should be glad to have their sentiments how best to carry it into execution, whether by submitting it to a meeting of the General Society at New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore, or by refering the matter at once to the different State Societies for their consideration.

I have this day received your favor of the 25th July, and am much obliged to the State Society and yourself for it.

With sentiments of great respect,
I have the honor to be,
Your most obedient servant,
Charles Cotesworth Pinckney,
V. P. G. S. C.

Col. W. S. SMITH President of the New York State Society of the Cincinnatti.

The following letter from Mrs. Hamilton will excite the sympathies of those who feel for her individual loss, and in it lament a great national calamity.

Albany Aug. 11, 1804.

SIR,

To the distress of a heart so deeply afflicted as mine, from the irreparable loss of a most amiable and effectionate husband, I trust the respectable society in which you preside, will impute the delay of an acknowledgement for their consolatory letter couched in terms that evince their sympathy, emenates from the heart.

Although great mitigation of that affliction, with which I am so severely depressed, can only be hoped from the mercies of the divine being, in whose dispensations it is the duty of his creatures humbly and devoutly to acquiese; yet, the wounded heart derives a degree of consolation from the tenderness with which its lot is bewailed by the virtuous, the wise, and humane; and also from that high honor & respect with which the memory of the dear deceased has been commemorated by them and those contemplated in the resolutions of the Society of the Cincinatti, transmitted by you, and for which you Sir, will be pleased to convey my warmest thanks to that respectable body.

I reciprocate with sensibility your and their recommendation of me to the divine care and protection—may they ever enjoy it, and without alloy.

I am Sir,
With great respect,
Your obt. servant,
E. HAMILTON.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.

Capt. Hunt, of the Sally and Jenny, from Surrinam, arrived at the Lazaretto, informs that no American vessel is allowed to clear out from that place, unless the cargo is at least one fourth molasses.

Sir Charles Green Governor General of the colony, has issued a proclamation laying a tax of 200 dolls. on letters of manumition for all slaves of 14 years old & upwards, and 100 dolls. for all under that age, to put a check to the prevailing fashion of the people freeing their negroes.

The English government, after the capture of the colony, declared by proclamation, the paper currency, issued for the pay of the Batavian troops during the time the Dutch had possession, no longer a legal tender for debts. Whether the Dutch government will ever redeem it is uncertain, but it falls heavy on the people, who were compelled to receive it while their governor had the command.

On Friday last says the Otsego Herald of August 23, was executed at the village of Aurora, in the county of Cayuga, John Deleware, an Indian of the Deleware tribe, for the murder of a farmer of Cayuga county, in October last. The concourse of people who attended this execution was very great.

Deleware is said to have expressed himself on the morning of his execution—"I shall live to kill great many white men yet." These are the only words he is said to have uttered the whole day.

NOTICE.

A PETITION will be presented to the General Assembly of Virginia, praying an act may be passed for removing the sittings of the County Court of Fairfax, to the town of Centerville, so soon as a Court House and other public buildings can be erected, which it is intended shall be done by voluntary subscription.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11.

To the Stockholders of the Bank of Potomac.

You have now completed the subscription to the Bank and are about to organize it.

In doing this, great care should be taken to select proper characters to direct and conduct its operations.

The institution being of a private nature and not sanctioned by law, your grand and leading object should be to give a free and extensive circulation to your paper—In order to effect this great point, it is all important that you appoint to the direction men of sound judgment and good information, unembarrassed in their situation, of liberal, upright, and impartial character, who are respected abroad as well as at home—Such should your Directors be, and such, it is to be hoped, they will be—every thing depends upon it. The credit of a Bank, but more particularly of one instituted like this, can only be raised and maintained by having in the direction, men of such characters, and as to the important office of President, it ought to be filled by a man of the greatest weight and influence in those parts of the country where your paper is most likely to circulate—Such a man is WILLIAM FITZHUGH, Esq.—He is well known to you.

These observations are made by one, who has the prosperity of the town, and consequently of this institution, deeply at heart; who views the establishment as one which may be productive of incalculable benefits, and who earnestly recommends to your consideration a judicious selection of suitable characters, for the important offices of President and Directors.

Mr. Snowden,

As I suppose the following gentleman qualified in every respect to discharge the duties of Directors of the Bank of Potomac, you will oblige me by inserting their names in your paper. Y. Z.

"The brave and innocent General MOREAU is going to America: no doubt he will go to Philadelphia to settle; though it is said he intends going to Lancaster, preferring the German settlements from their steadiness of character. This worthy man is regretted by every one for his simplicity of manners, and being without ambition. If the Empire stands, the emigration when once possible, will be very great from all parts of France.

Natchez, August 7.

We are informed that the name of the unfortunate person murdered in the wilderness last week, is Robert M'Alpin from Georgia. A person who came through since the post, saw Mr. M'Alpin's son, a lad, endeavouring to inter the remains of his father. The poor boy had no other implement in his possession to enable him to accomplish his pious purpose than a small tomahawk.

Federal Misrepresentation, No. 1—in the manner of Mr. Samuel H. Smith, Editor of the National Intelligencer.

Sick as death of the unceasing falshoods and misrepresentations with which the federal papers literally swarm, we determined to abandon at least for a time, the detection of what we hoped had been disarmed of its capacity of doing mischief. (We hope you understand this fine language reader, for it is very nearly Mr. Smith's own.) In this purpose we should probably have persist but for the daring effrontery of the following libel on the talents and philosophy of an ingenious citizen, whom the high station he holds, no less than the dignity of his mind, forbid to notice the low falsehoods by which his nautical reputation and skill have been assailed.

From the New-York Evening Post.

"GUN BOAT No. 1," is said to be a machine of wonderful powers and ingenuity, which has been constructed under Mr. Jefferson's eye, and according to a model presented by himself. Though the accommodations for sailors are not the best, yet this is a trifling objection——A single gun is mounted on a sort of "Whirligig chair," such as that from which our philosopher discharges the battery of his own genius. brought into action, is somewhat novel:— She runs down upon the enemy, until she has approached within striking distance.— She then turns tail to, hoists her boom, and lets fly a heavy shot, which is expected to end the conflict.—If not the gun boat is in a situation to run away—and thereby prevent the effusion of human blood."

It is on the authority of a friend of Mr. Jefferson who has long enjoyed his confidence, and acted with him in many important scenes of his administration, that we are enabled to detect the editor of the Evening Post in no less than three glaring misstatements in this single article, and to declare—

First. That it is false that Gun Boat No. 1, has her two and thirty pounder placed in her stern.

Second. It is false that in coming to action she turns tail to.

Third. It is likewise false that she hoists her boom to let fly a shot.

On the contrary, it is a fact now placed beyond all dispute, that the Boat has her gun port precisely in her stem, and is bro't to action in the following manner. The bowsprit, not being fixed in the vulgar manner, is raised by tackles. The passage in the stem which had been just before occupied by the bowsprit, now offering a gun port, the gun is run out through it, and lets fly from that situation, and not from her stern as is maliciously asserted in the Evening Post.— And here we venture to say that if the Editor of the Evening Post had not been a very weak man himself and every thing but a philosopher, he never could have supposed Mr. Jefferson such a cursed fool as to run his gun out from the stern when he could run her out from the bow. And as to the low lived attempt at wit in that editor, in representing Mr. Jefferson as a man who fights and fires altogether a posteriori, and his clumsiness in bringing Carter's mountain, and such stuff, it is a fact which we assert on the authority of a friend of Mr. Jefferson who acted with him in many important scenes of the revolution, that never was a braver man, or more intrepid, known during the war, or one who preformed a greater number of feats or more glorious exploits of private valour, than Mr. Jefferson, whose courage and soldier like conduct have been questioned for years, and still continue to be questioned and denied throughout the United States. But to return to our description of the Gun Boat in time of action. After discharging the shot the bowsprit is again lowered down with the utmost convenience into its place, while the gun is re-loading. During this time the vessel may set her gib and get under way once more, sail up to the enemy, and give him another shot, if, indeed, "it should happen in event" that the first has not already decided the fate of the day.

It is not to be denied that if the sea is any way rough and the vessel pitches much, the gun may happen to take salt water into his belly at an unseasonable moment, but in answer to this, a captious federal objection, it is to be remembered that the chance is at least five to one that the battle will not take place in a pitching sea; and if no new invention was ever adopted, till every possible objection that ill-nature and malevolence could raise, was answered and entirely obviated, surely the improvement of human affairs would long since have ceased, nor should we now be indulging in the glorious expectation of that happy event so clearly demonstrated by Mr. Godwin and other modern philosophers, that mankind are rapidly approaching to a state of perfectability. But it is endless to notice federal cavils.

In the above we have contented ourselves with pointing out in a summary, the gross misrepresentations of the editor of the Evening Post. "Thus do the ungenerous calumnies of the enemies of the Chief Magistrate recoil on themselves." Let this editor then like a man of candour "either prove the correctness of his first statement or acknowledge its falsehood. Unless he does one or the other he will stand arraigned before the public as the base traducer of character, as the propagator of falshoods. We will not forego this opportunity of remarking that there is a kind of infuriated malice with which, on all occasions, the character of Mr. Jefferson is attacked by this print, that looks more like personal hatred," between the editor and Mr. Jefferson, but of which we know not the occasion or particulars, "than like party violence." Nor have we seen it evinced on any occasion in a more gross and outrageous a manner, than in his mean but impotent attack on Gun Boat No. 1, and the manner of her coming to action.

P. S. Since writing the above, "Capt. W. who has just arrived, tells us that Gun Boat No. 1, on going to sea, was found to labour so hard, that she carried away her that the port for her 32 pounder was so low that the gun would be of no service at sea, and that it was so illy fixed, that it could not be run far enough aft; in short, that her overhaul, which was absolutely necessary, would cost from 700 to 1000 dollars, and then would be worth not half the money." All we can say to this is, nothing human is yet perfect; sic transit gloria mundi. At any rate all this will not justify the foul calumnies of the editor of the Evening Post in his wicked and malevolent statement, that the gun is fixed in the stern instead of the stem; which in fact is to "make cowards of us all." Cease viper, therefore, you bite against a file.

Died at her house in St. Peter's street, Canterbury, aged 70, Mrs. Celestina Colkins, widow. Although possessing an income of 70l. per annum, her habits of life were singularly disgusting, and disposition and peculiarities so eccentric, that she may be truly said to have verefied the old adage, "de gustibus nil disputandum." During many years her constant companions were from 16 to 23 fowls, whose odure defiled as well her bed and every article of her furniture as the plate out of which she eat.— A favourite cock, whose age might be calculated from its spurs, being three inches long, and an equally favoured rat, were, for a length of time constant attendants at her table, each partaking of the fragments which even her penury shared with them: till one day the rat, not preserving due decorum towards its rival, met his death from the hands of his mistress. Her predelection for vermin prevailed so much, that, at her death, a nest of mice was found in her bed. The house where she resided besides the room in which she constantly lived and slept, contained two others that had not been permitted to be opened for many years. Among the bequests in her will are 50l. to the Kent and Canterbury hospitals; the same sum to the parish of St. Peter; 5l. to the minister of the parish for a funeral sermon; and one guinea to each of the persons who should carry her to the grave; besides many other legacies, generally to persons in no degree related to her.

An actor, of some consideration, (said to be Mr. Cooke) and who had no aversion to "tipsy revelry," lately quarrelled with a supper party of bon vivants, at Manchester; and after a scuffle, in which he broke a pane of a window opening to the street, was forced to make a precipitate exit.

Shortly after he popped his head in at the broken pane, and exclaimed—"Gentlemen, I see through my error, and humbly beg your indulgence." A laugh ensued, and the hero of the sock and buskin, was restored to the honor of the sitting.

N. B. Prizes subjected to a deduction of fifteen per cent.

This Lottery has been authorised by the legislature of Virginia, for the laudable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this state. With this view it it contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expences attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect The scheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers. The treasurer of this state is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of the tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.

TO BE SOLD,

ON Thursday the 27th day of September next on the premises, to the highest bidder, if no disposed of by private sale before that day,

The TRACT of LAND

whereon I now live, in Fairfax county, Virginia, on Pope's Head Creek, containing five hundred and fifty acres; the situation is agreeable and very healthy; there is on it an excellent mill seat, on the abovementioned Creek, with an inexhaustible quantity of excellent grey free stone, and an abundance of good red and white oak, poplar and hickory timber, to erect the dam and necessary buildings, on the spot; there is on this Creek, which washes the tract for about two miles, a very considerable portion of the first quality meadow land, and a quantity of fresh land just opened and nearly half the tract is to cut. It is situated about twenty miles from George Town and Washington, and the same distance from Alexandria and Dumfries, and is justly considered the best piece of forest land in the county. The terms of payment will be, one third paid down, one third in eighteen months, and the other third in three years; an indisputable title will be made the purchaser, and the public are assured that the sale will take place, if not privately disposed of before the day of sale, as I am determined to remove to the state of Kentucky this fall.

ALSO,

On the same day and place, will be sold, all my STOCK of every kind, plantation utensils, household and kitchen furniture, and present crop now on hand, for ready money.

ENGLISH ACADEMY.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has engaged an assistant to his school, and means to enlarge the plan of it, he hopes, to the benefit and advantage of his pupils. The gentleman he has engaged has been almost thirty years employed in the didactic profession, and has acted as an assistant in eminent academies, ladies boarding schools, and as a private tutor in many genteel families.

The branches of learning which will hereafter be taught in his school are—SPELLING; READING, with propriety and gracefulness; WRITING and ARITHMETIC in all its various branches; ELOCUTION; BOOK-KEEPING, either in double or single entry; GEOGRAPHY, with the use of globes and maps; and the ENGLISH LANGUAGE with grammatical accuracy, including composition.

A NIGHT SCHOOL.

ON Monday evening the 10th instant the subscriber will also open an evening school, and continue it until the 10th of March ensuing. He indulges himself with the pleasing hope that the foregoing plan will meet public approbation, as well as the countenance of his present employers. The conveniences of his school room, and his own steady attention to his pupils improvement, will, he trusts, sufficiently recommend him to the patronage of the public.

The Terms of Tuition

For day scholars are Three Dollars per quarter for such as learn to spell and read; writing or arithmetic Four Dollars and Fifty Cents; the English language, grammatically, book keeping, elocution, geography, including the use of the globes, maps, &c. Five Dollars and Fifty Cents. The terms for night scholars may be known on apply to

J. Foster, Principal,

Who can well accommodate six youths with boarding.

N. B. The school is so constructed as to permit an entire seperation, between the boys and young ladies, and either can be accommodated with boarding. ☞ Ink and Quills will be furnished gratis.

The terms of tuition for the scholars, now in school, will not be altered till the present qnarter expires.

TRAVELS IN GREECE.

PROPOSALS,
FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION,
THE TRAVELS OF
Anacharsis the Younger,
IN GREECE:
During the middle of the fourth Century, before the Christian Æra,
With copious Notes and References.
BY THE ABBE BARTHELEMY,
Keeper of the Medals in the Cabinet of the King of France, and Member of the Royal Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres.

Translated from the French.

First American, from the fourth London edition.

IN FOUR VOLUMES.

THE work now offered to the American reader exhibits a complete view of the antiquities manners, customs, religious ceremonies, laws, arts, and literature of ancient Greece, at the period of its greatest splendour. A knowledge of these has hitherto been only attainable by a laborious perusal of writers who have been little solicitous to join entertainment with instruction. The Travels of Anacharsis, on the contrary, are so written, that the reader may frequently be induced to imagine he is perusing a work of mere amusement, invention, and fancy; till his eye glances to the bottom of the page, when he perceives there is scarcely a sentence, and not a single fact or circumstance, but is supported by the authority of some ancient author. The amazing number of these quotations may, perhaps at first sight, seem to have been unnecessary, and to have more the appearance of a parade of erudition, than to be of any real utility: but it is to be remembered that, at the same time that they must be highly acceptable to the man of real learning, by enabling him to refer immediately to the original author, they are extremely useful, nay, we may say, absolutely necessary, even to such readers as can never be supposed to have any intention to consult the authorities quoted; as they clearly shew that such an idea, or such a circumstance, is not merely a decoration, or the offspring of the fancy of the author, but immediately taken from some ancient writer, and therefore perfectly accordant to the general scope and plan of the work.

TERMS.

I. The first Edition in America of Anacharsis's Travels, will be comprised in four Vols octavo.

II. It shall be printed on handsome wove paper and a new type casting for the purpose. Each Volume will contain about 400 pages.

III. The price to Subscribers, per Vol. bound and lettered, will be 2 dollars; in boards, 1 dollar and 75 cents, to be paid on the delivery of each Volume.

The European Edition sels at 12 dollars per sett.

IV. There shall be a handsome Map of Greece given with the first Volume, to be executed by one of the best Engravers.

V. Those who obtain ten Subscribers and become responsible for the payment of the same, shall receive one copy gratis. The work is now at Press, and shall be finished with all possible dispatch.
